Christine Johnson President Mutual of Omaha Foundation

Christine Johnson is a visionary entrepreneurial executive who is accustomed to forging new ground, building strong partnerships and developing enterprise-wide strategic plans for philanthropy, community reinvestment, civic responsibility and economic development. She has spent more than 20 years identifying needs in the community and connecting individuals to the resources they need to succeed and thrive. As President of the Mutual of Omaha Foundation, Johnson continues that mission today, providing leadership and strategic direction for the insurance and financial services company's community and philanthropic initiatives. Johnson joined Mutual of Omaha in 2001. She has led the creation of a robust employee volunteer program and signature National Month of Caring initiative, resulting in thousands of hours of volunteerism around the country each year. Johnson also works with the CEO and other senior leaders throughout the company, helping facilitate Mutual of Omaha's community presence through strategic partnerships and community board involvement. And through the creation of a Talent Sharing Program, Johnson has provided an avenue for Mutual of Omaha employees to lend their professional expertise by assisting nonprofit organizations with short-term projects that further the missions of the organizations. In 2005, Johnson led the initiative to establish the Mutual of Omaha Foundation with the goal of enhancing and extending Mutual of Omaha's charitable giving efforts. As President, Johnson leads the Board and Foundation in its mission of helping families break the cycle of poverty. By supporting nonprofit organizations in the Omaha community that directly impact families with significant needs, the Foundation is addressing some of the most critical issues facing families today – issues like youth violence, domestic abuse, illiteracy and homelessness. Prior to joining Mutual of Omaha, Johnson was co-founder and Vice President of the Children's Respite Care Center in Omaha for 13 years. Beyond her work at Mutual of Omaha, Johnson serves on the board of directors for the Association of Corporate Contribution Professionals, Business Education Alliance, and Christian Business Women's Fellowship. She also serves on the Stewardship Committee of Christ Community Church and is a Leadership Coach for Creighton University's Anna Tyler Waite Leadership Scholars Program. She is a graduate of the University of Nebraska Medical Center and spent several years practicing as a Registered Nurse. Johnson resides in Omaha, Neb., with her husband, Steve, and two children, Jon, 24, and Melissa, 16.
